Guidelines For Affiliate Membership

in the Forestry Association of South Carolina

Requirements of Affiliate Organizations

1. Apply for membership using official application form or by written petition. FASC to be provided with membership roster and bylaws.
2. Hold minimum of two meetings each year.
3. Have a chairman and secretary, and any other officers deemed necessary.
4. Adopt bylaws for government that are subject to approval by the FASC Board of Directors and do not conflict with FASC Bylaws (example of recommended bylaws available from FASC). The Board reserves the right to terminate any affiliate membership with 30 days notice.
5. Will not adopt policy that is inconsistent with FASC policy.
6. Provide periodic update to FASC office on activities and scheduled programs (standardized report form available from FASC). FASC office placed on affiliate member mailing list.
7. Assist FASC in representing forestry interests before government bodies or other organizations as needed.
8. Agree to disclaimer of FASC financial or legal responsibility for affiliate members.

Benefits of Affiliate Membership

1. Affiliate can represent itself as a unit of FASC.
2. Two officers will represent the affiliate as voting members of FASC. Voting officers will be the chairman, or president, and the vice chairman, or vice president. If there is no office of vice chairman or vice president, the secretary or secretary-treasurer will be the voting officer. Voting officers who have personal membership in FASC will be granted two votes, one personal and one representing the affiliate.
3. Non-voting officers will be made supplemental members, receiving mailings and other information.
4. Meetings and activities promoted and reported on in the Carolina Forestry Journal.
5. FASC will make available or assist in obtaining forestry or related programs for affiliate use. These include speakers with expertise in various fields and staff reviews of current FASC activities, particularly in the area of government affairs.
6. FASC will be available to assist the affiliate in representing local forestry interests at municipal, county, state or federal government levels, or with other organizations as needed.
